Disaster recovery collection analysis for the ANU
Indigenous collection materials lost due to flooding - national context

Purpose:
The purpose for this collection analysis is to assist the ANU to identify collecting overlap for specific indigenous collection materials lost due to flooding, and to therefore understand the impact of this lost material in a national context, with a view to make decisions on how to replace material.
Disaster recovery collection analysis for the ANU
Indigenous collection materials lost due to flooding - national context

Purpose:
The purpose for this collection analysis is to assist the ANU to identify collecting overlap for specific indigenous collection materials lost due to flooding, and therefore understand the impact of this lost material in a national context, with a view to make decisions on how to replace material.

Organisation and ANBD context:
NUC symbol: ANU
Sector: University
ANBD holdings: The ANU currently has 1,260,579 holdings on the ANBD (equalling 3% of ANBD total holdings)

Collection analysis context:
536 indigenous titles were analysed within the ANBD to define:
- Volume of indigenous titles unique to the ANU collection
- Holdings volume for indigenous titles nation-wide, including state-by-state breakdown
- Holdings volume for indigenous titles held within the ACT, including top 10 libraries holding these collection materials
- Top 10 most popular titles held within the ACT

Source of information:
- The ANU provided Libraries Australia with a list of indigenous collection materials lost during the flood.
- Supplied local system numbers were used to source these titles within the ANBD for the basis of this collection analysis.

Volume of unique holdings:
Out of 536 indigenous collection materials lost by flood damage, only 6 of these items are unique to the ANU collection.
